

Rachel Montes

PERSONAL INJURY

Rachel Montes has devoted her entire legal career to leveling the playing field for people who have suffered injuries or loss at the hands of individuals and corporations.

After working for one of the largest personal injury firms in Texas, Montes started her own law firm in 1998, practicing exclusively in the area of civil litigation, and has been helping injured people and their families ever since.

Montes has helped hundreds of people seek justice in cases involving trucking negligence, fraternity hazing incidents, insurance bad faith practices, premises injuries, and defective products cases. Whether her clients settle out of court or seek justice in trial, Montes is a fierce protector of her clients and their rights. Montes has earned the respect and trust of other lawyers who have referred clients, friends, and family members to her for representation.

"Trial lawyers are the voice for those who otherwise would not be heard. I'm proud to be in a profession that helps hard-working people stand up to the corporate giants that use fear and intimidation as their front line weapons of defense. I consider a successful case one that combines fair compensation with policy changes that create permanent safety upgrades that benefit everyone. This is more meaningful to me than anything else."

Montes is the 2006 president of the Dallas Women Lawyers Association and a member of the board of directors for both the Dallas Trial Lawyers Association and the Texas Trial Lawyers Association. Almost as important, Montes is a season ticket holder and a big fan of the Cowboys and Mavericks.
